

INTRODUCTION

This list is a compilation of recommended books, journals, and audiovisuals for a vision science collection. The purpose of this list is to identify titles which should constitute a basic or "opening day" collection for a vision science library in a college, hospital department, medical center, corporate, or association setting. The items are suggested by librarians who are members of the Association of Vision Science Librarians (AVSL). The librarians use reserve lists, book reviews, expert opinions, faculty recommendations, usage statistics and other criteria for making their selections. Titles are suggested for inclusion in this list and the additions are reviewed by members present at the AVSL mid-year and annual meetings. Final selections are decided upon by the compilers. The Opening Day Collection is updated periodically with the month and year of publication on the front cover.

This year the A-V list combines the 2001 edition's CD section with the Video and Slides section which now consist mainly of DVDs. I hope that this list continues to help vision science libraries with their collection development decisions.
